OVERVIEW

What This Review Covers

This report walks through the campaign structure, service ad groups, ads, proposed targeting, budget pacing, and final confirmation items before launch.

1

Structure

How the launch is organized now and how it can expand later if performance supports it.

2

Ad groups

Which services are ready to run ads and which priorities should be confirmed first.

3

Ads and regions

Representative ad copy examples, proposed national targeting, and the priority market questions to confirm before launch.

4

Budget and confirmation

How the budget is paced through the month, then one final page for approval.

CAMPAIGN STRUCTURE

How The Campaign Can Grow Over Time

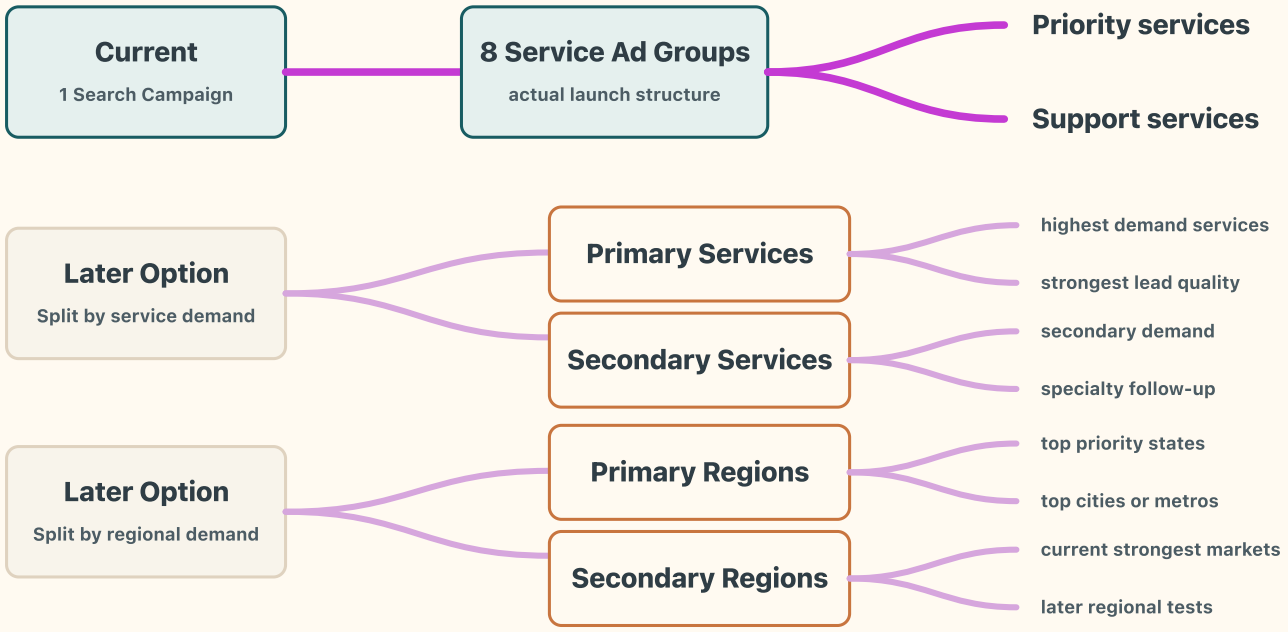
The launch starts compact. Future campaigns can split by service or region only after the data shows where separate budgets and reporting would help.

Launch shape

The current launch uses 1 controlled Search campaign with 8 service-based ad groups. This keeps early learning clean and easier to review.

Expansion rule

More campaigns should come later only when performance data shows a service or region needs its own budget, copy, and reporting focus.



One campaign now

The first launch stays compact so the early budget is not spread too thin.

Split later by proof

Future campaign splits should follow lead quality, conversion signals, and search demand.

No extra campaigns yet

The service and regional splits shown here are future paths, not active launch campaigns.

AD GROUPS

Services We Are Running Ads For

These are the service areas currently prepared in the Google Ads Editor file. Confirm the list is complete and identify which services should receive the most traffic first.

Services ready for ads

8 ad groups organize service intent, training intent, and consulting demand for the first launch.

Keyword control

56 phrase keywords and 3 negative phrase keywords are prepared. Active launch keywords use phrase match.

REGIONAL TARGETING

Where The Campaign Is Set To Reach

The current plan uses national targeting as a review placeholder because the website does not prove a specific service area. Confirm the full service area or provide priority markets before launch.

Current targeting and review items

The current build targets United States because the website does not clearly define a service area. Treat this as a review item, not a confirmed market decision.

United States

AREA TYPE	AREA	STATUS	WHAT TO CONFIRM
Country	United States	Ready for review	Confirm whether this means all 50 states are eligible to receive traffic.
Top states	Top 5 states	Needed	List the states where you do most of your work, or where new wins would matter most.
City	Top 5 cities or metros	Needed	List the cities or metro areas where spend should concentrate first if national reach is too broad.
Current work	Largest current markets	Needed	Tell us where most current clients or organizational relationships are located.
Fastest wins	Priority growth markets	Needed	Tell us whether there are focus areas where stronger referrals, recognition, or capacity can produce faster wins.
Exclusions	States, cities, or ZIPs	Needed	Identify anywhere the campaign should not spend, even if national targeting is approved.

Location targeting can use countries, areas within a country, radius targets, or location groups. Source: Google Ads location targeting.

PLEASE CONFIRM

Regional targeting: confirm whether you serve all 50 states. If not, send your top 5 states, top 5 cities or metros, current strongest markets, fastest-win focus areas, and any exclusions.

BUDGET

How We Protect Your Budget While Improving Performance

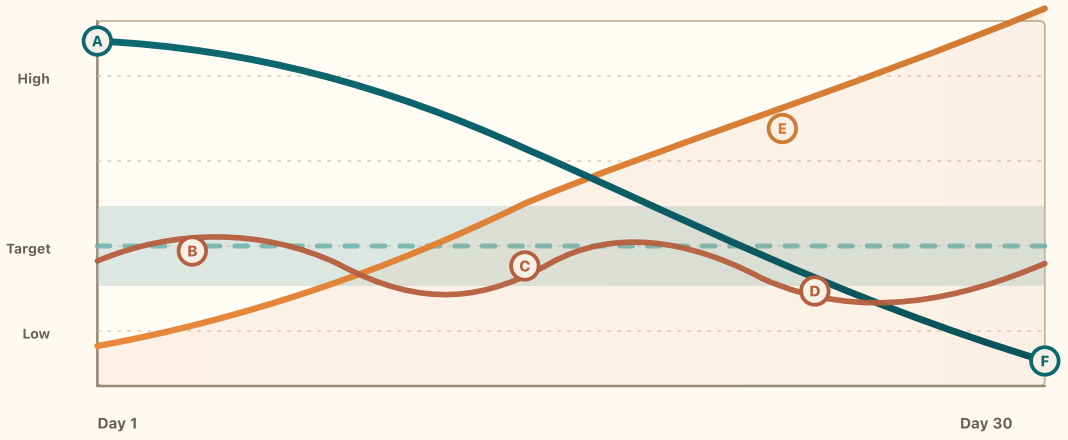
This page shows how the approved monthly budget turns into daily pacing, why spend should not be front-loaded, and how we keep room to improve once real search data appears.

APPROVED MONTHLY BUDGET	DAILY BUDGET	LOW DAILY RANGE	HIGH DAILY RANGE
$3,000	$100	$60	$145

How your budget moves through the month

The goal is to protect early spend while search terms, cost per click, and service demand become clearer.

Healthy daily range · Amount spent over time · Budget remaining · CPC and click movement



KEY	WHAT IT SHOWS
A	Most of the monthly budget is still available, so we can learn before pushing spend.
B	Day-to-day swings in CPC, demand, and clicks are normal early on.
C	We refine search terms and traffic while keeping daily spend inside the healthy band.
D	A quieter day is not always a problem. Auction conditions and CPC move too.
E	Spend steps up as results and intent become clearer.
F	Remaining budget eases down through the month instead of front-loading spend.

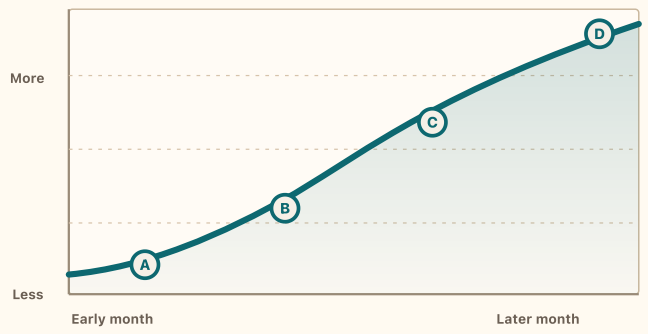
BUDGET

Why Spend Increases As Performance Gets Clearer

This page explains the operating logic behind the pacing curve. We do not spend more because the campaign is guessing. We spend more when the evidence is cleaner.

Why spend increases as performance gets clearer

Early spend is intentionally cautious. As waste is cut and signals improve, more of the same monthly budget can be committed with confidence.



STEP	WHAT IMPROVES
A	We see which searches are worth paying for before scaling.
B	Low-value traffic is trimmed.
C	CPC, conversions, and lead quality become easier to read.
D	We can raise spend because the data behind it is cleaner.

What this means for your campaign

We pace the full month

Daily spend and clicks will move. The aim is healthy pacing through day 30.

Starting lighter protects budget

Early limits leave room to learn before we push winning areas.

CPC changes click volume

The same dollars buy more or fewer clicks as auctions shift.

Later spend is intentional

Increases follow clearer performance, not reactive day-to-day changes.

PLEASE CONFIRM

Budget: confirm the $3,000 monthly budget before launch.
